

*It really was an extremely powerful presentation, and the feedback from attendees was overwhelmingly positive. A lot of interesting statistics were shared, as well as heartbreaking but factual, first-hand stories that make you think about driving in a whole different light. One of the most interesting pieces of information I took away was how many people regularly undertake training to improve their current employment skills or further their career, yet rarely, if ever, do people undertake any form of training or activity to improve or refresh driving skills, an activity a whole lot more dangerous (in most instances) than performing your job. Also, interestingly, the road stats show the age group of 39-56 year olds as the most vulnerable, not the younger generation as most would suspect. Kylie

*It was a very moving presentation. I left feeling very stirred emotionally and more aware of my surroundings while driving home last night. I was more conscious of other drivers' actions as well as my own. As a mother, partner, daughter, and grandmother, I will never take my family and friends for granted again. As we were told, we can never say, "It won't happen to me". Thank you once again to the wonderful Presenters and I will be encouraging everyone I know to attend them. Claire

*This workshop should be funded so it has more of a chance to reach more people and, as my 17 year- old son said, it should be compulsory for all people to attend before getting their licence. He found it quite thought provoking and REAL .. as he's so used to watching violence, crashes, death on reality TV or movies, or Grand Theft Auto!!, This workshop brings them back to the our reality in our own backyard, which was good to see . Linda

As my own brother and husband's brother were both killed in road accidents, I wanted to attend one of your Safe Driving Awareness Programs to see how they are conducted, to see who attends and to find out what your program does to try and change driver behaviour. I was very impressed by your speakers and was certainly affected by the terribly sad stories about how road trauma has affected their lives.

I found the Program very moving and I commend these courageous people who spoke about their experiences in front of members of the community. It was inspiring to hear from road victim's families about how this tragedy has suddenly changed their lives forever with the loss of their loved ones, and sharing their stories for everyone to hear in the quest to get the Road Safety message across.

Whether it is drink drivers, speeding drivers, or interested community members, all who attended couldn't help but be affected. It surely must have made an impression on the young and older law breakers and shown them the consequences of their irresponsible driving actions.

*I congratulate you and your committee on a very worthwhile program and wish you every success in the future in your endeavour to get your message on Road Safety to as many people as possible so we can try and reduce the unnecessary road toll. Debra
